The Fluorescent Tube is Dead – Long Live LED

Replace Fluorescent Tubes with LED's and Save a Fortune

The Thomas Partnership is working with market leading ECO ILLUMINATION, specialists in the specification and installation of energy saving LED illumination, to dramatically reduce clients' costs.

Retro-fit solutions from ECO ILLUMINATION can be implemented in a wide range of applications, typically reducing energy consumption by 70%-80% compared to fluorescent tubes, found in all back-lit advertising media and retail signage. And for property owners there are similar solutions for expensive-to-run car park illumination.

The opportunity to make dramatic savings doesn't stop there – with zero maintenance over an extended life of 7 to 10 years, there is no need to be constantly changing failed tubes and bulbs – improving visibility and image, as well as saving huge amounts of money in maintenance and labour costs.

With recent installations at The Trafford Centre, Liverpool Airport, and the new £400 million Gloucester Quays, it is clear that decades of inefficient and unreliable tubes and bulbs are about to end.

As an example, a single advertising or retail sign measuring 10m x 3m could save over £30,000 in operational costs over the first 6 years. With multiple signs or sites the savings are very substantial amounts indeed.

It is also a very timely opportunity to take a look at operational costs in this economic environment, with well publicised energy price increases predicted over the next ten years.

And even the government is helping. ECO ILLUMINATION has secured approval on many of its solutions for a Government contribution of 28% towards capital costs, off-set against 'tax on' profit until July 2010, with interest free loans available too.
